Morison s first lecture was given in the Medicine School on September 2, 1670, and on September 5, he translated himself to the Physic Garden where he read in the middle of it (with a Table before him) on herbs and plants for five weeks space, not without a considerable Auditory. 1 Space does not permit us to follow the fortunes of the Oxford Garden or to make mention of the many distinguished professors associated with it since its foundation, but it is of interest to remember that Sir Joseph Banks was a student at Christchurch, from 1760 to 1763, in the days of Sibthorp s professorship, a time when no lectures on botany were given and the subject was much neglected in the University. Banks was so keenly interested in botany that he applied to Sibthorp for permission to procure a qualified lecturer to be paid entirely by the students. This request being acceded to and a sufficient number of students having been obtained, Banks went to Cambridge and secured the services of a Mr. Lyons, a botanist and astronomer, for the purpose.² The assistance rendered by the sister university in the botanical education of one who was to achieve such great things for the science and to have so large a share in directing the fortunes of the Royal Gardens at Kew, is worthy of more particular notice since botany was not officially recognized in...
